Q: Create a "Master Page" from the database using ASP.NET MVC 3 and Razor I'm creating an asp.net mvc3 website where I'm using C# to create the database, ASP.NET MVC 3 to present the data, and Razor to create the HTML (also using C#). Is it possible to create a master page where I can easily change the header and footer for the whole website without having to change them in the view templates? I.e. Let's say I've got a master page with a header and a footer (defined in some C# code). How would I get these two parts of the master page (header and footer) to change dynamically based on the content of the database? A: Here is a blog post that explains how to do it.

Introduction When it comes to self-defense, a shotgun is probably the first gun you'll ever buy. If you don't know much about shotguns, you can learn more here. This article looks at two popular shotguns that are extremely capable self-defense weapons: the Remington 870 and Mossberg 590. Remington 870 If you want to buy a good 12 gauge pump shotgun for self-defense, the Remington 870 is a good choice. The shotgun delivers plenty of power for all common threats, from close range to ranges more than 75 yards away. Both semi-auto and pump versions are available, and this gun comes with a tough, factory-coated finish. Mossberg 590 The Mossberg 590 is a pump shotgun that is accurate, easy to handle, and holds a standard magazine. This gun also delivers more power than some other shotguns you can buy. Both semiautomatic and pump versions of this weapon are available and can

In case of MS Access database tables, it's a frequent requirement to find a needle in a haystack: a slightly misbehaving table in a large database. For a while now, Paradox databases have had an utility to help with such detection: PUtility ("Paradox Table Utility"). This tool is a very handy tool with five bells and whistles, including an "immediate error search" - but it doesn't extend to all types of tables. Pdxbld is an add-on for PUtility. With it, you can use the database search tool (Quick Search, Advanced Search, Reindex) to find the records of your choice. Subsequently, you can define a relationship between each found record and a procedure to be run for fixing the error. Pdxbld features: Finds errors in all Paradox tables Allows quick calculation of everything you need to repair a table Edit datatypes - Sort records - Convert records - Calculate fields - Click to fix errors - Define procedure to run - View fields for each record - Reset datatype for each field - Calculate range of values - Sort records by any calculation field - Convert records by any calculation field - Delete records by any calculation field - Sort records by any calculation field - Delete records by any calculation field - Delete duplicate records by any calculation field - Calculate ranges of values - Sort records by any calculation field - Convert records by any calculation field - Display fields for each record - Edit datatypes for each field - Delete records by any calculation field - Sort records by any calculation field - Reset datatype for each field - Delete duplicate records by any calculation field Pdxbld Error Analysis: Removing errors means removing records which may hinder the future work of the database. Pdxbld Error Analysis allows you to find records that were removed by mistake or incorrectly. It is the easiest way to track down the cause and track down the error to the correct record. With it, you can save and load records in your Paradox database which you want to examine. Pdxbld saves settings that are required for error analysis, and that can be loaded automatically (no need to add them to the program directly). You can add 09e8f5149f
