To elucidate the reaction mechanism of polyketide synthase (PKS) modules, we examined the involvement of cofactor molecules and quinone intermediates in the biosynthesis of erythromycin by using a reconstituted erythromycin PKS. The interactions of the substrates and cofactor molecules, i.e., acetyl CoA, malonyl CoA, and NADPH, in the PKS modules were studied by using NADPH or NADPH-deficient mutants of the modules. It was found that cofactor molecules were bound to polyketide intermediates via interactions with the PKS enzymes. 0cc13bf012
