Q: Microsoft Office Click Once issues failing when signed and unsigned test run When I try and replicate my click once issue, I hit the following problem. I add an extra auto_update column on a table, like so: UPDATE [dbo].[Tests] SET [auto_update] = 1 When I try and build from the client and publish the web app and then click on the generated package to publish to the web app, on the server the build will fail! It wants to create the column, but will not allow this because it's unsigned. This is when it happens on my test installations: I'll install a package over my test installation. On my production box, which is identical, it just works and deploys smoothly. Test version I am using: VS2010, SP1, Word, Excel, Visio, Access, PowerPoint and Office. Also, when I do CTRL + R R a key I am forced to restart VS2010. When I do CTRL + Break it gives me no option to "Enable Debugging for the process". I did some poking around and found that when I opened the same sql server on another machine, the auto_update table had the expected auto_update column. I'm not sure why this happens. Thanks for your help!

A: I ran into the exact same issue and it ended up being because I had Excel and Powerpoint hidden. (Hide the Excel icon on the toolbar is one way to hide Excel.) I opened them and I was able to break in the debugger. "blog/page_featured", :locals => {:blog => @blog} %> "blog/posts" %>
